Profile

Ken Komazawa started his career at NTT in 1997. He was transferred to NTT Comware, key system integration company of NTT Group, where he served as security engineer. Ken led major development, implementation, and consulting of the security systems for NTT group companies. In 2014, he was transferred to NTT and later assigned as Vice President of IT Strategy Office.

Ken led IT governance for NTT Group since 2010 - updated NTT Group IT Policy/Strategy, introduced application portfolio management, and executed IT cost optimization and system integration.

Ken launched the program in 2014 to visualize NTT Group's business information globally and successfully implemented the system.

In 2018, Ken established Enterprise Architecture as head of Japan domestic IT to drive "Accelerate our own digital transformation" objective defined in NTT's mid-term strategy. Based on this EA, he built data governance platform, standardized/stream-lined back-office operations, and succeeded in executing one of the world's largest big bang ERP implementations.

From 2024, Ken is promoting Platform Services business at NTT COMWARE CORPORATION.
